The fact that Odin specifically sacrificed an eye is surely significant. In all ages, the eye has been â€œseenâ€• as a poetic symbol for perception in general â€“ consider the astonishing number of expressions, both in everyday usage and in the works of the great canonical poets, that use vision as a metaphor for perceiving and understanding something. Given that Odinâ€™s eye was sacrificed in order to obtain an enhanced perception, it seems highly likely that his pledge of an eye symbolizes ...
